RANSOM ASKED FOR MATRON KIDNAPPED FROM LONG ISLAND

Husband of Socially-Prominent Mrs. A. M. Parsons Reported Ready to Keep Rendezvous With Parties Demanding $25,000 in Threatening Note Found in Car Outside Home

STONY BROOK, N.Y., June 10 (P).—Contact was sought tonight with the authors of a $25,000 ransom note which emerged as the principal clue to the mysterious disappearance of Mrs. Alice McDonnell Parsons, thirty-eight, socially prominent Long Island heiress.
Mrs. Parsons' husband, a gentleman farmer and poultry fancier, was reported ready to keep a rendezvous with the kidnappers at a Jamaica bus terminal in accordance with directions in the crudely printed ransom demand, which threatened violence if the "oops" were called.

Social Credit Expert Arrives in Alberta to Take Up Task of Adviser

EDMONTON, June 10 (P).—G. F. Powell, the latest Social Credit expert to come to Alberta to assist the Alberta Government in introducing the new economic order, had his first conference today with the Cabinet.

A few hours after his arrival in the city, the emissary of Major C. I. Douglas met Premier Aberhart and their Cabinet Ministers in an informal meeting. It was preceded by meetings of the Social Credit Planning Board.

On MacLachlan (S.C. Corporation) chairman of the board, announced that Powell would be paid no salary by the Government, but his expenses would be covered. Similarly, the second expert to be selected later by Major Douglas will receive no salary.

PLEADS FOR UNITY
A caucus of Social Credit members will be held tomorrow with MacLachlan reporting on his conference with Major Douglas in England. Powell will be present, making his first public appearance since his arrival here.

Meanwhile, insurgent members have today for investigation on the public works department by the public accounts committee of the legislature. They may delay their request until after the caucus tomorrow.

On French West Africa, June 10 (P).—Melba Earhart dropped her light airplane down to a perfect landing at this African outpost along the Niger River today to complete her round the world flight.

She had flown 1,140 miles from Dakar, French Senegal, skirting Timbuktu. Her plane swept onto the landing field seven hours and fifty minutes after the Dakar take-off.

Melba Earhart and her navigator, Capt. Fred Noonan, indicated they intended to hop off early tomorrow for El Fasher, in the Western Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, about 1,750 miles east and slightly south of Dakar.

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, June 10 (P).—For the first time in nearly ten years the mercury reached 90 degrees here this afternoon. The temperature, within a degree of Ketchikan's all-time record, marked the sixtieth consecutive day the official thermometer has passed 70 degrees above zero.

TRADERS GET SOME PROFIT

Gold Sold on London Bullion Market Under Price at New York

LONDON, June 10 (P).—About £380,000 ($1,900,000) worth of gold was sold on the official bullion market today at a London price sufficiently under the New York quotation to give traders about 21-2 pence (five cents) an ounce profit.

Brokers, with the rush of nervous hoarders' offerings over, have settled down to the relatively steady task of shipping small amounts of gold to New York in exchange for the profit in the London and higher New York prices.

(Gold quotations were $34.71 in London and $35.00 in New York today.)

UNRECORDED SALES
Some brokers said they believed there also were comparatively large, although unrecorded, quantities of gold sold privately for shipment.

Private sales, they pointed out, would not appear in any statistics until the United States Treasury published reports of its purchases.

A tremendous change in gold movements was known in this report issued by a brokerage house. Britain's gold imports this year, from January 1 to June 7, total about $18,000,000. In the same period in 1936 the approximate figures were $78,000,000 in exports and $21,000,000 in imports.

FUND'S PURPOSE
Further references to the gold situation were made in the House of Commons when Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, answered questions, said the exchange stabilization fund was being used only for checking undue fluctuations in the exchange value of sterling and not for the purpose of maintaining a fixed value for gold.

The Chancellor rejected a Labor suggestion that a committee be set up to study the effect of government gold purchases on other raw materials and upon industry.

EMPIRE SUPPLIES REPORT APPROVED
Imperial Conference Discusses Method of Co-ordinating Resources in Event of War

LONDON, June 10 (CP-Havas).—A laudable communique issued by the Imperial Conference press bureau tonight disclosed the important report of the committee on munitions and food supplies had been approved by the conference's seventeenth plenary session today.

The communique gave no indication of the tenor of the report, submitted by Sir Thomas Inskip, United Kingdom Minister for Co-ordination of Defence. It was understood to deal with methods of co-ordinating Empire resources in the event of war.

Germany and Italy Rejoining Great Britain and France in Work of Intervention Prevention On Coasts of Spain—Four-Power Agreement Will Be Completed Today

LONDON, June 10 (CP-Havas).—Great Britain and France effectively won Germany and Italy back to the non-intervention fold tonight, but at the cost of overriding a vigorous objection on procedure entered by the Soviet Union.

The dispute arose over whether the two Fascist powers' return to the non-intervention naval patrol around Spain should be effected through direct four-power action or through deliberations undertaken by the full twenty-seven-power non-intervention committee.

SWING THE BALANCE
The Fascists held out for four-power action, while Russia insisted on plenary committee discussions. Great Britain and France swung the balance in favor of the Italo-German view, and Foreign Secretary Eden will meet in the Foreign Office here tomorrow with the French, German and Italian ambassadors to put the finishing touches to a joint message to Valencia and Salamanca.

SIR ROBERT BORDEN, CANADIAN STATESMAN, PASSES AT OTTAWA

Their Majesties Cable Sympathy To Lady Borden

OTTAWA, June 10 (P).—King George and Queen Elizabeth tonight cabled their sympathy to Lady Borden in the death of her distinguished husband. The message read: "The Queen and I offer you our deep sympathy in the death of Sir Robert Borden, whose eminent services to Canada and the Empire will always be gratefully remembered."

Dominion and Empire Mourn Passing of War-Time Prime Minister Following Recurrent Heart Attacks—Great Conservative Leader Interested in Business and State to the End

Government Announces State Funeral to Be Held Saturday

OTTAWA, June 10 (P).—Canada pressed forward plans tonight to honor in death her war-time Prime Minister, Sir Robert Laird Borden. The distinguished eighty-two-year-old statesman died early this morning following recurrent heart attacks at his Wurttemberg Street home.

While Canada and the Empire mourned, acting Prime Minister Raoul Dandurand met the Cabinet a few hours after announcement was made of Sir Robert's death and approval was given to plans for a state funeral Saturday. Outstanding persons in many walks of Canadian life will attend.

Lying Dangerously Ill After Fishing Trip

Three weeks ago, when Sir Robert was forced to bed because of his heart condition, it was feared he would not reach his eighty-third birthday on June 28. Until yesterday there was hope. Then his condition was described as "very grave" and last night he slipped into a coma. Death occurred at 7:30 a.m., while he slept.

MENTAL VIGOR UNIMPAIRED
His health failed during the winter, when less and less he appeared at social events. Ottawa saw little of him. During the latter part of his illness, however, his condition was reported as "very grave" and last night he slipped into a coma. Death occurred at 7:30 a.m., while he slept.

SIR W. MULOCK SERIOUSLY ILL

Ordered Complete Rest After Return to Toronto From Fishing Trip

TORONTO, June 10 (P).—Grave concern was felt tonight over the condition of Sir William Mulock, former Federal Cabinet Minister and Chief Justice of Ontario. Because of his advanced years—he is ninety-three—his doctor has ordered complete rest.

Sir William complained of weakness shortly after his return on Sunday from a fishing trip in Owen Sound district, where he maintains a summer residence. He had gone there with members of the family on the previous Wednesday and enjoyed an open-air holiday, going out in a boat, but doing little fishing himself.

Overtaxed Strength
The journey is believed to have overtaxed his strength and he was unable, as Chancellor of the University of Toronto, to officiate at convocation ceremonies last night and today. While reports earlier today were that he was "sinking rapidly," members of the household were more optimistic when he awakened refreshed after an afternoon sleep.

Sir William's doctor reported his pulse and temperature near normal, but urged every precaution against his being excited or overtaxing his strength. Only immediate relatives were allowed to see him.

ARMY HEADS FACING TRIAL

Early Execution Thought Certain for Seven High Soviet Officers

MOSCOW, June 11 (P).—Seven of the highest officers of the Soviet army will go on trial for their lives today. A Government announcement issued early today said they were charged with treason.

Heading the list of accused was Marshal Michael Nikolaevich Tukhachevsky, vice-minister of war until just a month ago. Among the others were men who only a short time ago stood near the top of the Soviet defence system.

They will go to trial behind closed doors. The trial will mean they will be sent almost immediately before a firing squad without the right of appeal.

SUMMARY ACTION
The trial will be held according to an emergency decree issued in December, 1934, immediately after the assassination of Sergei Mironovich Kiroff, chief aide to Joseph Stalin, in Leningrad. This provides for summary action against enemies of the regime.

A communique said all the accused had pleaded "fully guilty." This was considered to make it certain they faced early execution.

One of the officers, General Kazimirovich V. Putna, former military attaché in London, was arrested last August, but the others were imprisoned only within the last few days.

Some held important commands until Wednesday, when they were displaced in sweeping changes in the Red army's highest posts.

Canadian and Empire Leaders Pay Tribute To Elder Statesman

Death of Sir Robert Borden Brings Statements of Praise for Part Played in Strengthening Empire Ties During Long Career

(By the Canadian Press)
MOVED deeply by the death of Canada's most famous "elder statesman" in Ottawa, outstanding Canadians recalled Sir Robert Borden yesterday as more than an efficient, courageous war-time Prime Minister. They stressed the part he played in strengthening Empire ties.

While plans went forward in the League of Nations, said Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Sir Robert's chief political rival at the time.

"His achievements at that time facilitated further development of the British Commonwealth, which found expression at the Imperial Conference of 1936 and subsequently in the Statute of Westminster."

Saanich to Adopt New Zoning By-Law In Two Weeks' Time

Final Endorsement of Measure Withheld to Allow Real Estate Board to Discuss Enactment—Only One Objection Heard

THOUGH the Saanich zoning by-law was given its third reading at last evening's meeting of the municipal council, final endorsement of the measure was delayed at the request of the Victoria Real Estate Board, which submitted a request through Reeve William Crouch that the enactment be tabled to give the organization time to more fully investigate the measure. Adoption will be made on June 24.

The by-law, which applies to the greater part of Southeast Saanich, is aimed at the preservation of the value of land, the promotion of public health, the conservation of property values and the direction of building development.

It restricts the construction of greenhouses, allowing them, hereafter, to occupy an area not greater than 2,000 square feet, sets

Good gates were too large, the ditching and diking too elaborate, and the whole scheme wrong.

Councillor L. G. Hagan maintained that the work had greatly improved matters, and had reduced the mosquito menace in that part of the municipality. Other members of the council agreed with Councillor Hagan that the complaint of the delegation should have been submitted eighteen months ago before the improvement plan, elsewhere widely endorsed, was carried out.

PERMISSION GRANTED

Permission to erect a dwelling and lunch room at the corner of Union and North Quadra Streets, at an estimated cost of $3,750, was granted J. I. Harkess, 3668 Elliston Avenue. The building will take the place of a baroque at this point.

Under provisions of the Sheep Protection Act, Mrs. M. McKay was granted the sum of $15 for the loss of twenty chickens, killed by dogs. Following the reading of a letter from W. G. Stone, superintendent, Employment Service of Canada, suggesting that all unemployed in Saanich file their names at the agency, since employment was on the increase, Reeve Crouch intimated that mimeographed copies of Mr. Stone's letter would be forwarded to all unemployed listed by the municipality.

HEAVY PENALTY

Appeal may be made to a board of three. The decisions of this board are final.

The penalty for violation of the provisions of the by-law is limited to a fine of $200, with a fresh penalty, not exceeding the same amount, for every day the violation continues.

The council heard the lone objection of A. H. Harman, who contended the enactment was too sweeping, and that it might work a hardship on property owners.

A petition regarding the method of draining property in the vicinity of Island View Beach, Telegraph Bay, received at a former meeting of the council, was implemented by a delegation from Ward Six, composed of Arthur Neave and Macintyre Dean.

Objection to the method by which the property was drained was taken by Mr. Neave, who held the

Hon. Hugh Guthrie Suggests Prompt Dealing if Agreement Not Carried Out

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, chairman of the Railway Commission of Canada, sitting with his two colleagues, J. A. Stoneman and George A. Stone, yesterday in the courthouse here, expressed his opinion quite forcibly with regard to the delay of the Northern Alberta Railway Company in carrying out the terms of an agreement entered into with the Department of Public Works of British Columbia with respect to the conveying of land for a road diversion at Pouce Coupe in Peace River.

D. W. Clapperton, Calgary, C.P.R. solicitor, appearing for the railway company, said that there was nothing in the dispute. The alteration in the road had been made and the road was in use. The only thing that remained to be done was the actual conveyance of the title.

W. B. Colvin, of the Attorney-General's Department, who appeared for the Public Works Department, said that a plan had been sent to the department and had been approved by it. The conveyance of the land was, however, never carried out as agreed upon.

Mr. Clapperton doubted whether the conveyance was needed. He thought the matter could be attended to without troubling the board.

CALLS FOR ACTION

"Why don't you complete your agreement?" asked the chief commissioner. "You have obligated yourselves in the agreement to do this. Why has it not been done?"

Mr. Clapperton, meeting the suggestion that the commission might make an order, said that the board never made an order along this line of obligating the railway to carry out an agreement such as this, that was a matter for the provincial court to deal with, if applied to.

"Would you facilitate such an application?" asked the chief commissioner.

"Certainly," came the ready reply from Mr. Clapperton.

The chief commissioner, reading from the statute, pointed out that there seemed to be ample power for the commission to deal on a complaint that an agreement was not being carried out. He considered there was power to make an order. He allowed a month's time before proceeding further with the matter. If an agreement were not reached satisfactory to the parties concerned, communication could be had with the board. The board would be sitting here in the Fall, and the matter could be reviewed then, if necessary.

Says Perry May Vacate Speakership

VANCOUVER, June 10 (C)—The Daily Province said today Hon. H. G. T. Perry, Speaker in the British Columbia Legislature since 1934, and recently re-elected member for Fort George riding, had "intimated" he would vacate the Speakership at the next session.

The paper said Mr. Perry intended to "return to the floor of the House as a private member."

Mr. Perry has represented Fort George at Victoria since 1920, with the exception of the years 1928-33.

EDMONTON, June 10 (C)—New record for university militia units in the British Empire, 110 officers of the University of Alberta Canadian Officers' Training Corps were successful in qualifying for "A" and "B" certificates in 1937 examinations, according to results announced here today. Total of successful candidates exceeded by seventeen the previous record, set by the University of Alberta last year.

TAKES APPEAL TO SAVE DOG

Fate of Boston Bull Terrier Hangs in Balance Following Magistrate's Order

The fate of a Boston terrier which bit a nine-year-old boy named Arthur W. Watson, 909 Cowichan Street, hangs in the balance, awaiting an appeal which is being taken by W. H. Bullock-Webster, counsel for the owner of the dog, John Ward, Redfern Street.

The matter came before Magistrate H. C. Hall in police court yesterday on the allegation that Arthur W. Watson had been severely bitten by the dog. The magistrate ordered the animal destroyed.

The evidence produced showed that a group of boys had been playing with a bear skin in the yard where the dog was. The animal became excited and when Arthur Watson took the terrier in his arms it bit him on the face and ear.

Evidence was given by Constable George Claydon, Mrs. Ward and others as to the offending dog having shown no disposition to be vicious in the past.

The annual Grand Post conventions of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of British Columbia will be held today and tomorrow at Nanaimo. Victoria members of both organizations will have today to attend the gathering.

The local contingent to the Native Sons' parley will be headed by Bruce A. McKelvie, grand factor of the body, who will be accompanied by George A. Gardiner, grand secretary; C. C. Pemberton, grand historian; and Robert H. Hucks, grand treasurer, and Robert H. Hucks, grand treasurer, and Victor Simpson, the latter two being delegates from Victoria Post No. 1.

Grand lodge officers who will attend the Native Daughters' convention from Victoria are Mrs. M. Grant and Miss J. Lester. The official delegates from Victoria Post No. 3 will be Mrs. J. Brown and Miss Elsie Neelands. Also attending will be Mrs. L. Lorimer, Victoria.

BRINGING POWERS TO PATROL AGAIN

asking assurances against further attacks on patrol warships. Eden held last-minute talks today with Charles Corbin, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Dino Grandi, respectively envoys for France, Germany and Italy. These conversations were mainly for the purpose of editing the accord to be completed tomorrow, and settled a few minor outstanding points.

FURTHER PROCEDURE

Further procedure, it was understood, will be as follows:

1. Eden and the three ambassadors will complete the draft of a formula providing for an appeal to Valencia and Salamanca to extend the naval zone in which patrol units may stay without fear of attack.

2. The four-power agreement also will embody provisions or consultations among the control fleets in case one of their warships is attacked.
3. The British Government will then forward the appeal to Valencia and Salamanca—by tomorrow night, diplomats here hope.

TO CONSIDER REPLY

4. The plenary non-intervention committee will be convened to consider the Spanish belligerents' replies, if and when they arrive. British circles feel confident that even if the Soviet Union persists in objecting to this procedure, it will be possible to have the four-power agreement ratified by a majority of the non-intervention committee's twenty-seven member states.

What Britain and France wish to avoid above all else, however, is giving Russia an opportunity to block Italo-German return to the committee by bringing up the Reich's revenge against Almeria and demanding Berlin be internationally stigmatized.

IN the crowded city and on the open road, too, you can't go far these days without STOPPING!

The average motorist makes 30 stops every single day!

That's what runs up your daily driving costs. One traffic stop can waste enough gasoline to take your car a third of a mile!

Shell engineers, recognizing the waste of stop and go driving, developed a way to "balance" gasoline.

By completely rearranging its chemical structure, this unique balancing process does to gasoline just what cooking does to some foods—makes it "digestible."

GROWERS WILL DISPLAY ROSES

J. Fyfe Smith, Vancouver, Will Again Be Judge at Exhibition Here

Preparations are being made for the annual rose show by the Oak Bay Rose Society, which has been set for Saturday, June 26, in the Crystal Garden. The judge will be J. Fyfe Smith, Vancouver, who holds a high reputation in this line and who has on many other occasions acted in this capacity.

As usual, the society is holding a competition for decorated tables, which is always an outstanding feature of the exhibition.

Rose lovers are having some difficulty this season in preparing for the exhibition in view of the rather unpropitious weather for producing the best of flowers. Extremes of weather have operated against the bringing of the roses to their fullest beauty, but it is hoped that the intervening time before the exhibition may bring about the desired perfecting of blooms.

POLISH PEOPLE MEET PROBLEMS

Harold J. Rounds, Y.M.C.A. International Secretary, Gives Address

Some of the external and internal problems of the Republic of Poland, that European commonwealth tucked away amid political intrigue and surrounded by envious nations, were discussed in an informal way by Harold J. Rounds, an international secretary of the Y.M.C.A., with members of the Rotary Club at luncheon at the Empress Hotel yesterday.

Mr. Rounds, who has been stationed at Lodz, a city of more than 600,000, located in the centre of the textile industry of the country, was sent to Poland by the Y.M.C.A. as one of the six technical experts in social work. His knowledge of the political and economic conditions was apparent by his frank discussion of the dangers of future aggression and the desire of the people to raise the cultural standard of the masses.

CONSTANT FEARS

Polish people, said Mr. Rounds, were constantly in fear of hostile demonstrations from without and were forced to maintain an army of 250,000 other ranks and another 250,000 equipped and ready for mobilization within a twelve-hour period. The Republic of Poland was proclaimed at Warsaw in November, 1918, and under the Treaty of Versailles (June 28, 1919) the assentors to the Covenant of the League of Nations, and signatories to the Treaty of Peace, guaranteed the independence of the country which is reconstituted within the limits of the eighteenth century "Polish Commonwealth."

After the proclamation of the republic, the Polish people, or a good number of them, stated Mr. Rounds, considered the work complete. But, he continued, it was very far from such and many problems continued to arise and still continue to arise for some years to come. One of the most difficult of the external problems, he pointed out, was the need for constant military defence because of the country's geographical position in troubled Europe. Germany and Russia, he remarked, were potential aggressors, and Poland was forced to maintain, by military force alone, her territorial integrity.

UNITING THE PEOPLE

The greatest of Poland's internal problems was the task of bringing together, or reuniting, the three parts of the country, which were distinct in themselves prior to the declaration of independence. It was not only necessary to reunite the country industrially, but economically, and to redraft the laws so that the one would be applicable to all.

In centuries past it had been the method of bureaucracy to control the people by subjection and to keep them illiterate and to deny them free access to information concerning their own country and the countries surrounding. Since independence, Poland has set up a system of compulsory and free education with the assistance and co-operation of a good deal of voluntary effort on the part of its citizens. The rehabilitation of industry, Mr. Rounds said, was one of the shining examples of the determination of the people to rebuild Poland.

GLORIOUS HISTORY

Mr. Rounds' talk was a careful and studied synopsis of the Polish situation, and he had time to give a little bit of the history of that country, which has for years occupied a front rank position in the international affairs of Europe. "Any nation that has produced such great men and women as Poland has a right to be proud of its history," he declared.

Frank J. Sehl announced the installation of the new board of directors would be held at the July 8 luncheon at the Empress Hotel, to which wives of Rotarians would be invited.

Alfred Dowell reported preliminaries for the picnic for underprivileged children were under way and plans were being made for the outing for the second Saturday in July.

EVENING MEETING

In the evening Mr. Rounds addressed a meeting in the Y.M.C.A. at which he reviewed again the Polish situation and said the present condition was worth watching in view of current developments. Particularly he advised those interested in political occurrences in Europe to pay close attention to the address of Herr Hitler tomorrow. It may be, he said, very important to the future peace of Europe and the world.

Mr. Rounds also reviewed some of the work of the Y.M.C.A. in Poland and the influence it had on the people. J. A. Heritage presided.

They were just off Sandy Hook on their first trip to Europe, when they met a small boat, inbound. "That's a tramp steamer," he remarked to his wife.

"My, doesn't it beat all," she averred, "with such a depression on, and still that class of persons can afford to take ocean trips."

Students of Normal School Assemble at Annual Banquet Here

Sixty Prospective Teachers Attend Closing Affair in Auditorium—Many Guests Are Present—J. Kyle and Dr. H. B. King Among Speakers

It was a memorable occasion for sixty Normal School students, from scattered parts of the province, when they gathered in the school auditorium with their principal, teachers and invited guests to observe the annual closing banquet last evening.

Words of wisdom were given the graduating students, by the guest speakers, with a view to preparing them for their life work, which one of the speakers described as the highest profession. Two students also spoke, while others appeared in solo and choral selections. V. L. Denton, school principal, presided.

In addition to the students, those present were: Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Denton, John Kyle, Dr. H. B. King, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hunkin, Dr. H. Anderson, Captain and Mrs. F. G. Dexter, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Grellman, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Fraser, Mrs. Horace Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. C. Wickert, Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. E. Green, Miss Olive Heritage, Horace Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. A. Cullen, Mrs. N. E. Murphy, Mrs. Reese Burns, Mr. and Mrs. John Gough, and Misses L. R. Peacey, M. D. James, N. Wallace and J. N. Pottinger.

TOAST TO DEPARTMENT

Following the toast to the King, by V. L. Denton, Miss Margaret J. T. Ferguson, B.A., proposed a toast to the Department of Education. John Kyle, director of technical education, made the reply.

Miss Ferguson referred to the happy relations established by the students during the past term, and the good fortune they experienced in being the first Normal School class to study the new curriculum of the department of education. She spoke glowingly of the school which afforded such pleasant surroundings for study.

In his response, Mr. Kyle apologized for the unavoidable absence of Hon. Dr. G. M. Weir, Minister of Education, and Dr. S. J. Willis, superintendent of education. He also mentioned the fact that the students were receiving the benefits of the new curriculum which they would teach. As school programmes must change with time, the speaker said, teachers must learn to adapt themselves. "It is essential to have the proper attitude when you take up school work," he declared. Mr. Kyle urged the students to take an interest in their work and derive the fullest benefits possible from the new course of study.

Dr. H. B. King, Vancouver, was introduced by Mr. Denton and spoke briefly. He counselled the students not to be downhearted by disappointments and hardships which they would be forced to meet, and mentioned the value and necessity of self-improvement right from the commencement of their careers.

Jack Church proposed the toast to the critic teachers and the response was made by A. T. Hunkin, principal of George Jay School. The speakers referred humorously to the trials of both student and critic teachers in the local schools.

MUSICAL PROGRAMME

Under the direction of F. T. C. Wickert, the girls' chorus offered "Sing a Light and Cheerful Air," with Misses D. Fraser and N. O'Neill as soloists, while the boys' chorus, under the same director, sang "Two Roses." The mixed chorus appeared in "Forty Years On." Miss Kathleen Seates delighted the gathering with two violin solos. Miss N. Wright and J. McLaughlin acted as accompanists.

The catering and table decorations were done by the students, under the direction of Mrs. N. E. Murphy, instructor in home economics. The place cards were also made by the students, under the supervision of John Gough, art instructor.

The evening was concluded with dancing to a popular four-piece orchestra.

BIG SEASON IN PROSPECT

Resorts Making Ready for Great Rush of Summer Tourists

WINNIPEG, June 10.—With prospects for a heavier tourist season in Western Canada than there has been for the past seven years, hotels, lodges and camps operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway in the Rocky Mountains and at the Lake of the Woods are humming with activity as the time for summer opening nears.

Banff Springs Hotel, Chateau Lake Louise and Emerald Lake Chateau will be the first to open their doors to the tourist rush on Saturday, June 12.

Devil's Gap Lodge, Lake of the Woods, opens on June 18, while three days later, on June 21, the mountain lodges at Lake Wapiti, Yoho Valley, Lake O'Hara and Radium Hot Springs, will swing into the official season.

T. E. Chester, assistant general manager in charge of the Western hotels of the Canadian Pacific, is authority for the statement that reservations now being held for individual travelers, tour parties and conventions, assure a tremendous business at the mountain resorts. Heavily augmented train schedules have also been prepared, with much of the space booked well in advance.

RESIGNS AS COUNCILLOR

Leslie H. Passmore Leaves Saanich Council Following Sale of Property

Leslie H. Passmore

Resignation of Councillor Leslie H. Passmore, Ward Seven representative for the past two years on the Saanich Council, was received with regret at last evening's council session.

In a letter read by R. R. F. Sewell, clerk of the corporation, Mr. Passmore pointed out that he had sold his property in Saanich and therefore was no longer entitled to sit as councillor. He extended thanks to his former confederates for the warm co-operation he had received from them.

Since Mr. Passmore had been returned by acclamation at the last municipal election and had the confidence of the ratepayers of his ward, Councillor E. C. Warren moved that no by-election be held to fill the vacancy and that another councillor act in his place during the unexpired term. The motion, seconded by Councillor G. A. Austin, passed unanimously.

Reeve William Crouch will represent Ward Seven until the elections are held.

Mr. Passmore's position as chairman of the health committee will be filled by Councillor Austin.

Nancy (aged six): "Are you the trained nurse that Sister said was coming to stay with us?"

Nurse: "Yes, I'm the trained nurse."

Nancy: "Well, come on then! We're having a circus out in our barn, and the children want to see you do your tricks."

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

LUKEWARM

Addison assailed lukewarm patriots. Spencer lukewarm blood. Dryden lukewarm obedience.

The undertone of tepidity about the adjective "lukewarm" gives it the connotation of "minus"; so that lukewarm should, really be "lack warm"—the sense intrinsic in the term itself.

"Lukewarm" is truly reiterative, having been originally simply "luke" (at the turn of the thirteenth century), and later "luke warm" (two words).

Deriving from the Anglo-Saxon "hleow" through the Old English "leaw," it signified by extension "faint," "weak," "mild," "thin," and finally "remiss"—the figurative application carrying over from provincial Latin into modern popular and literary usage.

SIR ROBERT BORDEN

It was not only his career in office that stamped the late Sir Robert Borden as a statesman. That, too, was the judgment of all his political contemporaries, and will be the judgment of history as well. In his active political life he was the ablest parliamentarian in the Dominion and enjoyed the reputation of a clean, honest and earnest man who set the needs of his country above everything else. When a Union Government was formed during the strain and stress of the Great War, Sir Robert, or Mr. Borden as he was then, became its leader without argument or question.

Sir Robert was a descendant of the United Empire Loyalists, and was born in 1854 at Grand Pré, that Acadian village immortalized by Longfellow. After a spell of work in the teaching profession he took up the study of law and was called to the bar in 1878. Those high principles with which his career was marked showed from the beginning of his active part in life, and it is recalled of him how he once refused a retainer from the Dominion Government in order to protect the interest of a much humbler client, in a lawsuit in which, had he acted for the Administration, he would have received an imposing fee. He did this, too, in the face of a peremptory and insistent demand from the then Prime Minister, Sir John Thompson. This was an illustration of the steadfast pursuit of ideals.

As much as any Canadian statesman during the political course of this country's brief history, Sir Robert was a believer in the doctrine that the highest future for the Dominion lies within the Empire upon conditions of equal status. He took this stand because of the liberty which British ideals connote. He wanted to see the growth of that liberty widening out from precedent to precedent, but always remaining true to the spirit and genius of its ancient roots. It was his visit to Great Britain during the course of the Great War that opened up a new era in the relationships of the Overseas Dominions to the Motherland, and sowed the seeds which came to fruition in the Statute of Westminster.

Sir Robert was well equipped for the public life that he adorned. When a lawyer in Nova Scotia he was easily first of his contemporaries. He always held a sacred regard for the fundamental principles of law, believing that "Law enlightened by Liberty, and Liberty restrained by Law" should have a real and abiding meaning. In his early days Sir Robert was believed to be a liberal in politics, and there was some truth in this, for he accepted the principles proclaimed by Joseph Howe. It was, however, the trend in the policies of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to divert Liberalism from channels which led to closer British connection that brought Sir Robert actively into the Conservative fold. This was due to the Liberal policy in 1891 of unrestricted reciprocity with the United States. Sir Robert found in the Conservative Party a better instrument of Canada's national growth, and in 1896 he was the candidate in Halifax and was returned. Five years later he became leader of the party at a time when its political outlook was dark.

For ten years, with a courage that faced all obstacles, the Conservative leader combated the entrenched strength of the great popularity of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and he finally triumphed on the very issue which brought him into Conservative politics. The election of 1911 was a Borden battle. He won through it the reward that belonged to a clean and fearless fighter desirous to preserve his country's best interests. He put the State first and the party afterwards. He was less concerned with defeating the Liberals than with allowing any condition to arise which might make this Dominion an economic adjunct of the United States. He brought to office that untiring devotion to duty that had marked his years in opposition, and the country found in him a leader capable of rising to heights in any crisis. In the national effort in the Great War he played a statesman's part, and he won the ungrudging gratitude of British peoples everywhere and recognition as an Imperial figure.

Those who knew Sir Robert best remember him as a gracious personality, as a man of profound convictions, earnest always and deeply imbued with the spirit of service. No man was better equipped to serve his country in the office of Prime Minister from 1914-1918, for he embodied the determination of the people of the Dominion to give of their best in the struggle in which so many nations were engaged, and on the side of those traditional principles which have made the Empire what it is today. His leadership in those dark days was an inspiration. His faith never waned in the cause to which he had pledged his country. His whole purpose was concentrated on achieving victory and in bringing to the Allied cause the resources of Canada wherever and whenever they could be used to the best advantage. Now, years afterwards, in appraising the manner in which great difficulties were met and surmounted, the highest tribute must be rendered to Sir Robert Borden for his undeviating devotion to duty in a crisis that shook the world.

Possessed of wide knowledge, with a marvelous memory and great lucidity in expression, Sir Robert was a tower of strength to his party as a debater in Parliament. Perhaps, however, what won him the greatest respect were his admirable self control and a fine personal dignity. He was always the gentleman in political life. Even when the greatest heat was engendered in the political lists he chose reason rather than denunciation, and he preferred constructive criticism to acrimonious suggestion.

Sir Robert, in political, and in private life as well, stood for much that is best in the country, just as Earl Baldwin stands for some of the most admirable qualities of the English people. He had possessed himself of an influence that followed him into retirement, and that made his advice and counsel on all matters listened to with the greatest respect. His loss will be more widely mourned than that of any citizen who has been summoned away during the past few decades.

EVERYDAY SPEECH

The commonest practice of mankind, that of everyday speech, is what is perhaps given the least attention. There was an illustration of this when 250 applicants sought screen work at a large film studio. Of these 235 were declared unfit. The remaining fifteen were given tests, and twelve more eliminated; only three were hired.

Professor W. N. Brigrance, in his book, "Your Everyday Speech," describes unsatisfactory speech as "muffled, guttural, strident, rasping, shrill, nasal, or speech in which the articulation is so blurred that those around must resort to that most monotonous phrase: 'What did you say?'" It is the kind that is trade-marked by jaw laziness, lip laziness and a substitution of the nose for the vocal chords. It is speech in which the mouth is kept closed, as Corinne Lowe once said, "like the front door of an old-fashioned farm house and is only opened for airing."

Except where there is an impediment or some physical disability there is no excuse for bad speech, yet such speech is found all the time in the ordinary conversation of ordinary people and not confined to public speaking. Tests for radio broadcasters and screen applicants have brought this fact glaringly to light. The human voice was never so prominent on the public stage. It stands, more than anything else among human activities, in need of improvement.

ENGLAND'S "UNITED FRONT"

Mr. Howard Vincent O'Brien, of The Chicago Daily News, was in London for the Coronation, and when there he corroborated an impression he had got wherever he went in England. It was, to quote his own words, "that nowhere on the globe today is there a nation so completely unified. Everywhere else there is Left and Right, with a chasm between them. Everywhere else the bitterness between the haves and the have-nots is great. Everywhere else there is a ferment of conviction that the world must be radically altered. Here in England the conviction seems all but universal that while whatever is may not be wholly right, a few minor changes will fix it."

Mr. O'Brien went to England from revolutionary Mexico, and by way of the "turbulent United States," and he described the effect produced on him by the unity and decorum of the British as "overpowering." Then he says: "As I sloshed through the rain after the Coronation, my ears caught to catch what I could of the talk in the streets, it came over me that the lords of Britain have what the lords of no other land have—a people who will obey orders, and obey them because they want to obey them. There is talk everywhere about the 'United Front.' England is the only place where I have seen it."

Moscow's new name for death for treason to the Soviet realm is "liquidation." Recently forty-three railway "breakers" were liquidated in the Far East, a part of Russia which Pravda describes as a plague spot because of plots against Bolshevism. Every citizen in Russia's Far East is asked to keep an eye open for suspicious symptoms in stations, theatres, cinemas, eating-houses and beer houses, in fact, wherever people congregate. Russia is a listening gallery and a whispering gallery in which everyone suspects his neighbor. The first anomalous whiff of freedom has yet to be experienced in the Soviet air.

REACHING THE LIMIT

Government creates little and consumes much. That has always been true everywhere, but in our country the waste was relatively unimportant as long as government kept within bounds. Now that it is consuming a dollar of every four earned in the United States the question arises whether the country will really benefit from greater efficiency in the performance of tasks which are themselves to a very large extent unproductive and wasteful.—Chicago Tribune.

Note and Comment

By Sandham Graves

Take two men, and after you have made allowances for their differences in build, mental powers, training, environment and so on, there is still to be weighed the greatest difference of all, vitality. It seems almost as if life was a portable commodity, greater or smaller bundles of which are found tucked inside of every human creature at birth. The size of the man has nothing to do with the case; often the most alive persons being those who are diminutive in a physical sense. The mind of a man does not seem to supply the answer either, for men with the most active mind are often without that unseen, vital spark which supplies the driving energy of the human engine. Living energy is the phrase, but it is difficult to fit it into the ordinary make-up of a man. The fact remains that some people have larger bundles of life stored up in them than their fellow men, and that from the day of their birth to the day of their death they are more vibrantly awake and alive. This, call it the X quantity in man, is a constant, life factor; and the degree to which it is present determines all of a man's life. Novelists get at it, though when they say that such a character is "lean, but wiry"; or "small, but cunning"; or any one of a hundred phrases meaning to explain the inexplicable, the intangible factor, the essence of life. Happy are they who were given a sizable bundle of life. Their dynamo are self-generating.

Victorians who switched on their radio dials one afternoon this week got a real thrill out of an unheard broadcast emanating from London and New York, over the aerials of the B.B.C. and N.B.C., respectively. This column tuned in just in time to hear an observer on board the British flying boat Cavalier, bound for New York, describe the passing of the Bermuda Clipper, bound for Bermuda, while both aircraft were 3,000 feet up over the Atlantic Ocean and several hours at sea from opposite termini on the same route. The Cavalier, of the Imperial Airways, was bowling along at 150 miles an hour or better, in wireless communication with two continents. The Bermuda Clipper, of the Pan-American Airways, was doing the same thing, only in the opposite direction. The British ship had left Bermuda, and the clipper had cleared from New York. Both flights were considered as routine, part of the experimental work going into development of trans-Atlantic airship service this year. The British crew, a "little" over the task of describing the crossing of two ocean-going air liners in mid-ocean; but the command of the Cavalier, Capt. W. N. Cummings, spoke of the flight as something entirely in the day's ordinary work. Captain Cummings said he had been flying for twenty years, including war service; spending half of that time on land machines and half on flying boats, with some little experience in Canada. The Cavalier, he said, could carry twenty-four passengers by day, and sleep sixteen passengers at night, both with all the comforts of a home from home. This column was growing almost as excited as the announcer, when the latter suddenly excused himself. He was going, he said, to have a meal in the dining saloon, 3,000 feet up over the restless waters of the Atlantic Ocean.

Down on the Causeway, with the mast of a doomed barkentine and the blue hills of Sooke for a background, is Victoria's little Geneva, where men of sense and experience gather to discuss affairs of real moment in this changing world. It is here, as sticks pound out the solid evidence of conviction, they will tell you what France will do, for a certainty; what Russia will say; what Germany cannot escape; what Italy is headed for; and the inscrutability of the far East. It is here that prophecy is tinged with such burning sincerity that at times one is convinced that the Causeway, and not Geneva, ought to be the meeting ground of the League of Nations. Would you find men without weak doubts; would you have your convictions hot and strong, without any maybes or ifs; then the Causeway is your answer. You can pick your topics, too. If the first seat is off on a junket to Paris, try the second, where infiltration of foreigners into Spain may be under review. If that does not please, try the third seat; it is almost sure to be the mechanization of armies for war. Ah, it is a rich, red-blooded agenda that is served up daily on the Causeway by the cosmopolites of Victoria's little Geneva. Ably argued, hotly contested, no-surrender debates on the most advanced topics of world economics and politics are staged, with all the carefree abandon of the most cloistered tribunal. No judge could be more judicious; no jury more unbiased; no dictator more devastating, than these volunteer pleaders on the good behalf of the world. They save democracy daily. They put their foot on the tyrant's neck in the forenoon, and again in the afternoon. They strike away regardless of where chips may fall, until the whistle blows for meal-time; and then, like sensible fellows, they go off to eat. Would that all the world's differences were so ably, amicably settled. Here's to Victoria's little Geneva. Men of heart and spirit, every one of them!

Boxia, immensely popular wherever it is played, made its Victoria debut Wednesday afternoon at the Royal Athletic Park. It was a grand "coming-out party" for a sport which, in our opinion, is destined to become a part of our Summer sports calendar. To the members of the Victoria Commission, those veterans of the game who worked so hard to establish it here, we say congratulations. Victoria was once known as a good lacrosse town. There is nothing to stop this city from regaining a spot in the sports spotlight, and to us there is no better way than that being undertaken at present by the Victoria Commission in training the young players. Wednesday's exhibition definitely told us that we have the talent, and now it is up to us to develop it. Let's all get behind the move to place boxia on a sound footing, and always keep in mind that old adage, "In union there is strength."

Eggs in Italy

He was a Canadian who liked ham and eggs for breakfast. He found himself alone in Rome. His wife, who knew the language quite well, was spending the week-end with friends. Thus, when he went to market, he was somewhat in a quandary. He drew a sketch of a hen. They produced a chicken. He drew an egg. They produced oranges. He gestured. They spoke at length, and vehemently. Finally, as a crowd collected, and a police official gazed upon the scene with a terrible frown, the Canadian selected a round stone, sat down, dropped the stone, arose, and cackled like the triumphant hens he owned on his own Vancouver Island farm. There were cheers. Eggs were pressed upon him. The proprietor of the store refused money. The Canadian was patting on the back. It was just another occasion when pantomime was more fluent than the spoken word.

Glancing Over Sport

So Pam Barton went out of the British Women's Golf Championship before the first sharpshooting of Mrs. Andrew Holm, who, in turn faded from the picture in the next round. I figured that Miss Barton was a cinch to win the title again and had it in this column, but the News Editor put his pencil through the item when the champion went to the side lines. . . . Dizzy Dean shaded Carl Hubbard without any trouble the other day. Dizzy, you know, is one of the greatest showmen in baseball since the passing of Babe Ruth. He can win games any time he wants to. That's how colorful he really is. . . . Congratulations to Harold Pretty for winning the medal test at Gorge Vale last Sunday with a card of 75 from a field of close to eighty. Harold did well with the greens mighty tough throughout the day. . . . I predict that Charlton Athletic will beat Victoria by six clear goals next Monday at the Royal Athletic Park. . . . Picking a winner in the U.S. open golf tournament is a difficult task, but I will stick behind the efforts of Jimmy Thomson, ranked as the world's longest driver. . . . Do you know that Rogers Hornsby, forty-one-year-old manager of the St. Louis Browns, handled six chances without a miscue the other day and batted safely three times out of five trips to the plate?—J.D.

A Nice Increase

Barbers increased the price of haircuts from thirty-five to fifty cents, a rise of more than 42 per cent. The cost of living is supposed to have increased 20 per cent, so we presume barbers are now in the money again. Service Station Joe remarks that midnight oil is now burned in automobiles. . . . We never hear any person speak of increasing the wages of sin. . . . We head Aubrey is spending the next few days catching up on his sleep after entertaining an Oregon visitor. . . . After several years of tinkering, Broad Street Bertie finally discovered what was wrong with his radio set. It was the programme. . . . Definition of an egotist from our tobaccoist friend: "A man who thinks he knows as much as you do." . . . Bill, the Broad Street barber, says he knows a Scottish girl with a "come hither" look in her eyes. . . . The Keating Squire told us farmers are really clever. They do not try to get

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily Colonist of June 11, 1887.)

The Coinage—The royal proclamation has been issued ordering certain new coins to be made at the mint. The British gold coinage will no longer be limited to sovereigns and half sovereigns, but there is to be a five pound gold piece, and also others of the value of two pounds; there is also to be a silver double florin, and other pieces of silver money called "The Queen's Maundy Monies" of four pence, three pence, two pence and one penny.

Plaza Street Erected—A flagstaff was erected on the Bank of British Columbia Building by A. J. Smith yesterday, which set the building off to advantage.

Personal News—Mrs. A. C. West will arrive from San Francisco on the steamer G. W. Elder. R. Nuttall, wife and daughter are passengers by the steamer G. W. Elder for this city. Mr. Mackay, manager of the Pacific Bank, San Francisco, left this morning for New York via the C.P.R. Mr. Justice Gray, D. R. Brown and wife, Captain W. G. Lewis, Captain Webster and A. Gray were passengers from the mainland by the steamer Yosemite last night. Miss Rodger, public school teachers of Portland, visited Victoria yesterday en route for Boston, Mass., and were the guests of Mrs. D. R. Munro at the Driscoll House.

Unsolicited!

You know we wouldn't think of going more than a day without washing our own faces, but the faces of some of the buildings around town are sadly in need of a scrubbing—and a good many of them lifting. All this evolved, of course, from the wonderful results we noted on a local building that had just undergone a facial. It rather stands out from the rank and file of structures we pass every day. This being Jubilee Year, the city should be spic and span, so how about a little more activity on the building washing industry.—W.I.P.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

By Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

It is not only possible, it is easy to overdo a good thing at bridge. Take, for example, that one defensive principle known as "forcing the declarer." Generally speaking, this is a shrewd plan, but, like all other rules, it has numerous exceptions. Sometimes it is obvious that declarer's trump strength is too great to be threatened by forces. On these occasions defenders should not waste time on a fruitless quest. There may be other and more successful fish to fry. Continued forces worked out badly in the hand shown below:

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	3	Pass
Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

Southern was pretty strong for a two way three bid, but, considering the part-score and the fact that his partner had passed originally, he felt that a slam was remote and that pre-emptive tactics might save him from being driven to high by the non-vulnerable opponents. Naturally he did not count on picking up such a "bust" from North.

West opened the king of hearts and, receiving an encouraging card from partner, continued with the ace. Declarer ruffed the second round, and laid down the ace and king of trumps. The queen falling to drop, he shifted to the king of clubs. East accepted his ace on this trick, and, with more doggedness than vision, persisted in forcing the declarer by leading another heart. Declarer ruffed and then led the jack of spades.

FOR ANTS

Sir,—To rid yourself of these pests, blow pyrethrum powder into their haunts, or powdered red pepper. For outside, use naphthalene, sold by florists or at Vancouver Drug Store. GEORGE TESTER, 421 Parry Street, Victoria, B.C., June 9, 1937.

CIVIC THEATRE

Sir,—Captain Thorpe-Double, in his letter, "It Happened in Hollywood," says "It is not fair to expect amateur actors and actresses to take parts so utterly contrary to their natures with success."

If actors or actresses (amateurs or otherwise) were only to give to the characters they have to portray their own natures, what a wonderful effect it would have on the play—a lion and a lioness would be acted as a lion and a lioness, a lamb would be acted as a lamb. Had he said that the latent talent (undoubtedly there) was eclipsed and submerged in a play of depravity and debauchery, misnamed a comedy, he would have been nearer the mark. I was present when some of the most famous actors discussed the point as to whether an unmarried lady could adequately act a love part. Perhaps Captain Thorpe-Double had a similar idea.

A Civic Theatre might be possible, provided that the manager or promoter worked absolutely and unselfishly, expecting no thanks or profit, but many kinks, yes, many kinks; that the pictures be met by as low a cost of admission and same amount of comfort, and no waits;

He believes trouble will start next Spring, and before that if the European situation involves the Soviet in the Western area. Mr. Blomgren told of a China rapidly becoming nationalistic and giving every promise of being able to

These were just beginning to be developed. Gold mining was having a boom, the amount produced last year totaling $22,000,000. There were vast iron deposits, which Japanese interests are opening up. He stated that a large number of Japanese lived at present in the islands, particularly on Mindanao.

Just over twenty-four hours behind schedule, the American Mail Line S.S. President Grant, Captain H. B. Clark, U.S.N.R., commander, arrived alongside Rithet Piers shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning, inbound from Far East ports. Docking the ship at Hongkong for four days was the reason for the ship being behind time, officers of the ship stated, all of which, with the exception of twenty-eight hours, was made up between Shanghai and Victoria. Two cabin passengers and a number of Chinese stevedores travellers left the liner here.

Mails were landed, the crew supplying the steam and the Victoria Longshoremen's Association men handling the mails on the dock. Cargo amounting to 500 tons for discharge here was taken on to Seattle at 11:30, when the ship left the local dock.

date decision was to be made. On learning the news, however, they hastened to add their expressions of good will to congratulations being heaped on Mr. Wismer, well-known barrister of Vancouver.

Mr. Wismer was elected to the Eighteenth Legislature in November, 1933, and re-elected at the recent general election. In the House he served on several legislative committees, and at recent sessions took the chairmanship of leading panels on public works and private bills. A consistent supporter of the Administration, his name was early mentioned for the portfolio as were those of Norman W. Whitaker, K.C., M.P.P.; W. T. U.S. CROP OUTLOOK BEST IN SIX YEARS

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP).—Government crop experts predicted today that the United States wheat harvest this year would be between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 bushels—the largest in six years. Not since 1931, when $41,674,000 bushels were harvested, has there been such a crop.

The predicted yield would be well above last year's $26,461,000 bushels.

SIR ROBERT BORDEN PASSES AT OTTAWA

religious service at the Wurttemberg home, a public service will be held in All Saints' Church. Burial will be made at Beechwood Cemetery. The body will not lie in state in public.

DURING WAR YEARS

Sir Robert Borden was the only leader of a combatant nation who held the reins of power from the beginning to the end of the Great War.

The strain of war years, the worries and cares of office undermined his health and he retired to the tranquility of an old Colonial home overlooking the Rideau River in Ottawa—his place in Canadian history etched deeply, his recognition as a world figure assured.

A Nova Scotian, Borden entered Parliament in 1896, became Conservative Leader in 1901 at the height of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's popularity. He slowly limited the fortunes of his party and rode into power in 1911 in fighting opposition to the Taft-Fielding reciprocity pact with Washington.

It was Borden's destiny to be leader of a government during war time. But he seemed to be moulded for that particular task—patient, determined, self-sacrificing. There was nothing devious or subtle about him. With relentless tenacity, he speeded the nation to war pitch. When enlistments fell off in the dark days of 1917, he formed a Union Government to pass a conscription law.

AT PEACE CONFERENCE

The tall, broad-shouldered Canadian, with the quizzical grey eyes, played a leading part at the Versailles Peace Conference and he insisted that Canada sign the treaty as a separate nation. Then, until July 10, 1920, he remained in office, starting the reconstruction period.

His health undermined and his job done, Borden retired from politics, to be succeeded by Arthur Meighen as Conservative leader. He retired to the sort of life he loved—time for books, time for golf. He traveled. He picked up sufficient business connections to keep him busy. And he found time to represent Canada at world events, the Washington Naval Conference in 1921, the League of Nations in 1922. He lectured in Canada and Great Britain. And he puttered about his garden.

While not a drinking man himself, Sir Robert was not a prohibitionist. He smoked and was the only Canadian Prime Minister who chewed tobacco, a small quid being hidden under his cheek, few people ever knowing about it. He owned a car; in fact, boasted about it.

In later life, Borden played golf and bowled, and in his younger days in Halifax was a fair cricket and tennis player. His great hobby was books, and few agents ever turned away from his door without an order.

BELOVED BY VETERANS

During his years of retirement, Sir Robert continued his interest in the men who had fought in the Great War, and in Ottawa no ex-servicemen's function was complete without him. His popularity was great, the war veterans entertaining for him a profound and sincere affection.

They appreciated the gesture of Prime Minister Mackenzie King in delegating Sir Robert on the Government's official party at the unveiling of the National Memorial on Vimy Ridge in July, 1936. The veteran statesman made the journey and while in France was received with high honor by the French Government.

Sir Robert Borden was born in Grand Pre, N.S., June 26, 1854, near the historic fields, edged with Acadian willows, the Evangeline well, the church and burial ground immortalized by Longfellow. He was a descendant of Samuel Borden, an American surveyor, who moved to Pictou, N.S., in 1760, before the Loyalists. He was educated at Acadia Villa Academy in Horton, N.S.

Like a political contemporary, Sir George Foster, Borden started out in life to be a teacher, moving to New Jersey, where he became a professor in the Glenwood Institute. But he stayed only a year or two, returning to Nova Scotia to study law and eventually going into politics.

In September, 1880, he married Laura Bond, of Halifax. They had no children.

ORIGINALLY A LIBERAL

Sir Robert, like his cousin, Sir Frederick Borden, originally was a Liberal, but he differed from the party platform in 1891. He slowly drifted into the Conservative camp, and finally in 1896, at the age of forty-two, he was elected Conservative member for Halifax.

That was the election that swept Laurier and the Liberals into power, to stay there until 1911. In a House of 213, there were only eighty-eight Conservatives, and it wasn't long until the studious member from Halifax, with the deep, sonorous voice, was marked for higher things. His keen intellect stood out in the small opposition group, the finest possible training for a future office-holder.

The Conservative party, after long years in power during the glamorous days of Sir John A. Macdonald, had fallen on evil days. One leader succeeded another. Laurier formed his "Cabinet of All the Talents" and swept everything before him.

APPOINTED PARTY LEADER

Sir Charles Tupper led the Conservatives until his defeat in 1900. At a party caucus in Ottawa, February 6, 1901, Borden was selected party leader by the eighty-one Conservative members.

Borden was comparatively unknown when the mantle of Macdonald, Abbott, Thompson, Bowell and Tupper fell on his shoulders. The Conservative party was disorganized by Laurier's brilliance. Half-fax defeated Borden in 1904, and he offered his resignation at a caucus. It was declined and a seat was found for him in Carleton, Ont., Edward Kidd resigning.

That marked the turning point in Borden's career. In those days an opposition leader received no salary from the Dominion, and half a dozen wealthy Conservatives contributed $5,000 a year to him. That continued for three or four years until Laurier made Canada the first country to recognize the services of an opposition leader.

Borden slowly welded the party together, but not without difficulty. To many people he was a cold, distant man in an unhappy contrast to the magnetic Laurier. There were insurrections against his leadership, cliques that wanted him cast aside as the party lost again and again.

Borden's courage and tenacity may be demonstrated by one of these parlor revolutions. A group of Conservative members wanted Sir Richard McBride, from British Columbia, as leader, and he came to Ottawa. Borden knew about the movement and gave a dinner party to the members with himself and McBride as speakers.

VICTORY FOR BORDEN

Everyone knew it was to be a test between them with the leadership prize. McBride, a fiery, rhetorical speaker, flush with rolling phrases and happy adjectives, spoke first. Then came Borden, regarded as a logician, a colorless speaker who dealt in facts, not high-sounding rhetoric. But it was Borden who emerged victorious. It was he who continued as leader.

Laurier stayed in power and Borden in the shades of opposition. Finally came that day in 1911 when the Taft-Fielding reciprocity pact was laid before a startled House of Commons. It incorporated that old dream, free trade in natural products with the United States.

Borden wavered at first, unwilling to support it, unwilling to oppose it. But, a caucus of members convinced him it was his duty to oppose it. He did oppose it, so adamantly that he forced dissolution and an election.

The 1911 election was one of the bitterest in Canadian history with reciprocity the major issue. Borden emerged as Prime Minister with reciprocity defeated and Laurier crossing the floor to the opposition benches. It marked the beginning of Borden's destiny.

The war clouds were hovering over Europe even in those days and Borden's first major question was a naval one. In 1913, believing there was an emergency, he proposed Canada add three dreadnoughts to the British fleet. Laurier held to his own policy of a Canadian navy to protect Canadian shores. But the Government bill carried in the House after the longest filibuster in history, with Liberals speaking two, three, five and ten hours. Every naval commander from Noah to Nelson was quoted. Whole plays from Shakespeare were read. Borden finally introduced a closure motion, the first time in Canadian history. Although the bill passed the Commons, the Liberal majority in the Senate defeated it and Canada continued with its own naval forces.

DIRECT IN SPEECH

All this time Borden was gaining political strength and popularity. Never a colorful, emotional speaker, he generally toured the country with a pep-talker, a man to tell the jokes, enthrall the crowd—Colonel Hugh Clark, of Kincardine, Ontario, was one. Borden was not a good mixer like Laurier; he lacked the sparkle, the wit and the mercurial temperament of the Liberal leader. On the other hand, Borden in his speeches was direct and outspoken, leaving no doubt of his meaning. On the platform, Borden was still the lawyer arguing a case with cold logic the driving force. Curiously enough, hecklers brought out the latent fight in him.

It was the war that brought out the most in Borden. In a practical sense, Canada had no army in 1914. Starting from scratch, due largely to the driving force of Sir Sam Hughes, Borden's Minister of Militia, troops, munitions and all the implements of war were sent across the Atlantic. The Canadian Corps was formed in September, 1915, when the Second Division went to France. Two more divisions followed later.

Meanwhile, Borden and his ministers were whipping the industrial and agricultural life of Canada to a war pitch. He was the first Dominion Premier to be invited to attend the sessions of the British Cabinet in July, 1915. Again and again he visited Great Britain to confer with Empire leaders on the prosecution of the war. He went to France in 1915 and again in 1917. In February and May, 1917, he attended sessions of the Imperial War Cabinet, the first summoned to represent all sections of the Empire.

But Borden has his political as well as war difficulties. Enlistments were falling off despite a nationwide appeal he made in the Autumn of 1916. In that year Parliament had extended his own life twelve months, but was far from unanimous in passing a similar resolution in 1917. Borden declined to accept the split opinion, deciding an election must be held. Meanwhile the franchise in Dominion elections had been extended to women.

UNION GOVERNMENT

A union government had been mooted for months with the Conservatives divided on the project. At a caucus in May, 1917, Borden told his followers the decision must be his and the next morning conferred with Laurier.

Meanwhile a conscription bill had been introduced in the House, Canada's first experiment with the draft. At the conference with Laurier on May 29, Borden told him frankly his fears for the future efficiency of the Canadian Corps without adequate replacements. He gave him all the confidential information he had gathered in England, and invited Laurier to join in a union government of equal membership with Borden as Premier.

Laurier hesitated, insisting conscription should not be passed without a mandate from the people, preferably through a general election. He took two or three days to think it over.

Borden next proposed to him to form the union government and pass the conscription law, making it operative only if the new government were sustained at the polls. Again Laurier took a couple of days to think it over and then, in Borden's words, "said he could not enter a government which would enforce compulsory military service."

Regarding the discussion with the Liberal leader, Borden said: "He added also—he is a man whose memory I revere and I am sure he was sincere in what he said to me—that he believed after all that in the national interest perhaps he might be of more service outside the Cabinet than in it. I did not agree then, nor do I agree now, with what he felt in that regard. But, in justice to his memory, it is only right that I should tell you this."

CONSCRIPTION ISSUE

Negotiations with Laurier ended June 6, with the Liberal leader opposed to compulsory conscription by any Government. Although Laurier was opposed, a wing of his party was agreeable to entering a Union Government and enforcing conscription.

Borden decided to enter an agreement with the Liberal wing, offering equal representation in the Cabinet with Conservatives. This caused open rebellion among Conservative members and Borden threatened to resign at a caucus. Again his resignation was declined and Union Government was formed.

Referring three years later to the Union Government, Sir Robert said: "The Cabinet was never, from first to last, divided on party lines. There were many subjects upon which there was controversial discussion, but always there were some former Liberals and Conservatives on one side and former Liberals and Conservatives on the other. And, indeed, the two strongest Tories in the Union Government were men who in the past had been classified as Liberals."

Borden's Union Government was returned overwhelmingly in 1917, the "khaki election." The draft law went into operation, providing 83,355 of the 895,441 Canadians under colors.

The war ended in November, 1918, and Borden's task was nearly completed. He attended the peace conference in Paris and from the very first insisted that Canada should sign the treaty and become a full member of the League of Nations. It was Borden, the student of constitutional development, who insisted that Canada be recognized as an individual nation, a nation strong enough to fight, a nation strong enough to compete in world trade, a nation strong enough to seek lasting peace.

DREAM COMES TRUE

The modern constitutional set-up of the British Empire, established at the 1926 Imperial Conference and placed on the law books by the Statute of Westminster, was a dream of Borden's. In 1915, he told an English audience: "Upon what has been built in the past it is possible and, in my judgment, probable that an even nobler and more enduring fabric may be erected. That movement must embody the autonomy of the self-governing Dominions and the British Isles as well."

Borden remained at the head of the Government until July 10, 1920, when he resigned the leadership. He was not a candidate at the 1921 election, which saw the Liberals, under Mackenzie King, return to office. The long war and the intensified work had undermined Borden's health and he had sense enough to retire before his health was shattered.

He retained his unbounded faith in Canada, on his eightieth birthday, exclaiming: "As to economic conditions, I have perfect confidence in the material future of Canada."

When Sir Robert gave up politics, he gave it up for good, never entering even the gallery of the House after his retirement.

KNIGHTED IN 1914

Borden was knighted June 3, 1914, after twice declining a title, not believing the time opportune. He was a believer in titles, but when the House passed the W. F. Nickle resolution in 1920 requesting the sovereign to confer no more titles on Canadians, he did not vote.

In 1918 Sir Robert was appointed chancellor of McGill University, holding the position until 1924 when he became chancellor of Queen's University. He lectured at University of Toronto in 1921, delivering the Marfleet lectures on "Constitutional Developments in Canada." He delivered the first series of the Rhodes Memorial lectures at Oxford University during 1917 on the subject: "Canada in the Commonwealth; From Conflict to Co-operation."

Sir Robert Borden was elected president of the Crown Life Insurance Company in 1928 and became president of Barclays Bank (Canada) when it opened in the Dominion in 1929. He was a director of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Keewatin Flour Mills, Nova Scotia Telephone Company, Eastern Trust Company and Canadian Forestry Association.

An Anglican, he was for years vice-president of the Lord's Day Alliance and life director of the Carleton County Hospital.

Pushing across the winning marker in the tenth frame, North Saanich softballers last night eked out a 4-3 victory over Painter's Bruins in a senior "A" tussle at Sidney.

It was the second straight victory for the Saanich boys and pulled them to within one game of the fourth-place Victoria Longshoremen.

The home nine scored a trio of markers in the second frame for the first runs of the game. Bruins knocked the count in the eighth stanza when they sent three runners around the paths. There was no further scoring until the tenth inning, when North Saanich pushed across the deciding marker with two men down.

Harold Turner started on the hill for Bruins, but was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the fifth frame. He was nipped for six hits during his stay on the mound.

Glendenning took up the heavy work and allowed only three bingles for the remainder of the game.

Shepherd survived seven innings on the slab for Saanich boys, but was driven to the showers with a three-run attack in the eighth frame. Byers, ace moundman, replaced Shepherd and closed the game for the evening.

Alice Marble Goes Down

Miss Alice Marble's racquet goes flying as she makes a graceful three-point landing after slipping on the wet court while attempting to return one of Miss Freda James' low shots during their match in the final round of the Surrey championship at London, Eng. Miss Marble, holder of the American crown, lost to Miss James, Britain's fourth-ranking player, by scores of 6-4, 6-3. The San Francisco girl, who was making her bid for her first 1937 tennis title, is shown in her stockings. She discarded her shoes at the game's half-way mark, hoping that this would make her footing more secure.

Stan Leonard and Chuck Congdon in Deadlock for Lead

Vancouver Amateur and Tacoma Professional Share First Place in P.N.W. Open Tournament At End of Thirty-Six Holes—Emory Zimmerman in Runner-Up Berth With 142

By LOCKEY JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

JERICHO COUNTRY CLUB, VANCOUVER, June 10 (P).—A tall Tacoma professional and a hard-driving Vancouver amateur blazed a sub-par trail through a drizzling rain to share the lead in the first day's play of the Pacific Northwest open golf championship.

The Tacoma professional was Chuck Congdon, who went the morning round in 69, three under par, and added a par 72 in the afternoon for a total of 141.

Stan Leonard, the Vancouver amateur, led the Tacoma pro by a single stroke in the morning as he carded a sensational 68, but had a bad seventh, where he took a nine that cost him the lead as he came home with 73, one over par, to go into a tie with Congdon.

Emory Zimmerman, the defending champion from Portland, carded a 74 in the morning eighteen, but blasted par in his second time out to record a 68 for a total of 142 and second place at the end of the day's play.

Another Vancouver amateur, Brian Hopkins, was not to be disregarded as a threat. Playing steadily throughout, he put together a 71-72 for 143 and third place.

Don Sutherland, Vancouver pro, carded a pair of 72's for 144 and undisputed fourth place, while two other Vancouver professionals, Freddy Wood and Dave Black, were tied in sixth position with 146's.

Verne Torfin, Tacoma professional, whittled a morning 75 by three strokes for par figures in the afternoon, a total of 147 and undisputed sixth place.

The blasting continues over the final thirty-six holes of the seventy-two-hole route tomorrow.

Twenty-Two Already Entered in Matson Cup Meet At Colwood June 20

Duncan will be strongly represented at the Colwood Golf Club when the large field tees off in the thirty-six-hole medal test on full handicap for the Jack Matson Memorial Trophy on Sunday, June 20. Yesterday Nat Staples sent down a list of twenty-two Up-Islanders to Harold Brynjolfsson, who is a member of the committee looking after the tournament. The local official stated that he expected a complete list from Duncan during the week-end and also that he hopes to have a list of shotmakers coming down from Nanaimo from Bill Hogan in a few days' time.

Those entered from Duncan up to yesterday are: T. Kingscote, J. Matland, R. W. Whidden, R. E. Balas, Roy Haines, D. Crane, N. C. N. E. Suddaby, Alan Prevost, C. C. Wright, F. Leeming, A. Leeming, P. Chambers, O. Drob, E. Hedley, A. Hanson, S. Dyde, A. Irving, B. Tisdall, P. Jaynes, B. Powell and W. Staples. At least ten of these more have signified their intentions of making the trip from Duncan.

From Nanaimo a large delegation is expected, while Comox, Ladysmith, Courtenay and other towns will have representation because the winner of the handsome trophy also takes possession of the Vancouver Island handicap golf championship for the next twelve months. Oak Bay, Gorge Vale, Uplands, Macaulay and Ardmore Clubs will have members competing in the event.

Besides the trophy, several other prizes will be up for competition.

TURN IN SCORES OF 69 TO HEAD FIELD BY A LONE STROKE

P.G.A. Champion and Young West Virginia Sensation Pace Title Contenders at Birmingham Course With Sub-Par Rounds—Five Others Shoot 70's—Manero Has 76

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Writer.

BIRMINGHAM, Mich., June 10 (P).—Climax to an unexpected shelling administered to Old Man Par today at the outset of the battle of Oakland Hills, slim Denny Shute, of Boston, the two-time National P.G.A. titleholder, shot his way through the stretch to the Slamm'n' Sam Snead, West Virginia freshman pro sensation, for the first round lead in the United States open golf championship with 69 strokes.

A wold opening day scramble saw twenty of the 166 starters equal or surpass par, a flock of "dark horses" run wild, and the defending champion, Tony Manero, trail by seven shots with an erratic 76.

Johnny Goodman, 1933 open champion, joined two other amateur sensations in the five-way tie for third place at 70.

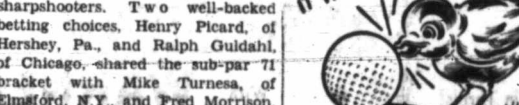

The day's long shot surprises were sprung by "Railer Bill" Holt, the Syracuse (N.Y.) automobile salesman, and twenty-one-year-old Frankie Strafaci, of Brooklyn, public links champion of 1935. They joined big Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia, and Frank Walsh, of Chicago, a pair of professional cracks, at the 70 mark, with Goodman.

WAGERS ON SELF
Holt, who wagers $5 on his chances "across the board" at the fantastic pre-tournament odds of 50 to 1, was one of the main reasons why operators of the two betting books at Oakland Hills were taking double portions of aspirin in the clubhouse tonight. Another was Strafaci, who wagered on himself at 200 to 1.

Eighteen of the 166 runners were four professional sharpshooters. Two well-backed betting choices, Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., and Ralph Guldahl, of Chicago, shared the sub-par 71 bracket with Mike Turnesa, of Elmsford, N.Y., and Fred Morrison, of Pasadena, Cal.

Except for Tommy Armour, Chicago's "Scot" Scot, who quickly dissipated his chances with a first round 78, all the prime betting choices were still very much in the content 'n.

THE TUTTS... By Crawford Young

STUBBY BRINGS DAD A TERRIBLE REPORT CARD

THE WORLD AT ITS WORST By GLUYAS WILLIAMS

Jane Dixon Says:

IN THE SPRING A YOUNG MAN'S FANCY TURNS TO THOUGHTS OF LOVE, BUT NOT SO THE WOMEN. THEY HAVE SERIOUS INTENTIONS, AND ALSO MANY TROUBLES

A young man's fancy may lightly turn to thoughts of love in the Springtime, but there is nothing light about the turning of a young woman's fancy in this season.

Young women, who are writing to me about their love problems, aren't fanciful at all. They have serious intentions.

Object—matrimony!

The surprise is that a vast majority of women who want to know what they are to do about their love life have their hearts set either on a man who obviously is not interested in them because he is still engaged in looking the field of prospects over, or he definitely is interested in another woman.

Let's hit the nail on the head and say the men the ready-for-love women can't get are the ones they are determined to have.

Could it be the contrariness of human nature that gets them in such a "picklement?"

What is there in our nature that makes us hold the unattainable the most desirable?

Nine out of ten of the women who assure me they can't get along without the man they can't get, will be ready to trade him for a broken down automobile or even for a row of hairpins once they have him on their hands.

A LONG LIST OF WOES

Such appeals as these come to me:

1. I'm 23 and desperately in love with a boy two years younger. We went together steadily for a while, but now he seems to avoid me. He has no regular job, but I have, and he knows I'm willing to go on working and to do more than my share toward a home. He says he won't marry until he can take care of things on his own. I notice he has enough money to take other girls out to movies and things. What's the big idea? He knows I'm crazy about him.

2. This boy I love has been going with me for three years, but not steadily. Every now and then he quits, and he won't even answer my letters. He has never told me he loves me, but I'm sure he does or he wouldn't come back. He never apologizes for his actions when he does date me again. Once he went with my best friend for two months, then they had a quarrel and he quit. Now he's paying all his attention to a new girl who has just come to town. He is nice to me when we meet, but he never asks me for a date. How can I stop him from being a rover?

3. My parents think I ought to marry, and I agree with them, but the man I cry myself to sleep over hasn't asked me to marry him, and when I try to bring up the subject he says, "Let's go some place and dance."

4. I'm head-over-heels in love with a married man, and he says he loves me, but because of his two small children he must stick to his bargain with his wife, who is a flat tire, and can't do anything for him. Don't you think if he really loves me he ought to get a divorce so we could marry?

THEY NEED SELF-CONTROL

5. The young man who is engaged to my sister is my ideal man. I love him, Miss Dixon. I'll never love another man. When he comes to see sister I have to get out of the house. I can't stand it. Why couldn't he love me? I'm younger and prettier, and have loads more pep. I think sis is beginning to suspect how I feel. She watches me all the time when he is around. He has never given me any reason to think he cares for me, but I love him so much he must love me, just a little.

6. What do you do when you're asked to be bridesmaid at a wedding in which the man you've loved since you were a kid is marrying another girl?

Heigh ho! So it goes.

Love is as vagrant as a breeze through a budding bough.

The answer to it all is self-control.

Don't be resentful because of your requited love.

If a man loves you, he will let you know it. If he does not love you, what you are mistaking for the grand passion is not the real thing, for true love is mutual.

So stop your tears and lift up your heads and look about you. Your love that passeth understanding is yet to be, so keep a sharp look-out for it.

(Copyright, 1937, by Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Grandma saw some boys in the yard. "Willie," she said, "tell those boys to leave!" Willie threw up the window and shouted: "Hi! Get out! Or I'll sic my grandmother on you!"
